Course Outline/Topics to be Covered

The twelve-week Warehouse Training Program provides all the entry-level and career advancement skills needed to succeed in the warehouse field. The WTP teaches material handling, safety training and shipping processes which includes pallet jack operation, safety scale operation, hand tool usage, proper wrapping and forklift training. In addition, students learn, inventory control, receiving, disassembly, processing and testing of recycled materials. The WTP is designed to provide jobseekers with "hands-on" training therefore, all student's will be working in Goodwill RI's warehouse in order to put into practice the skills and knowledge they have acquired. As part of this process each student will be compensated for their time worked; classroom hours will not be paid but students must participate in classroom activities in order to continue in the program. Graduates will work directly with an Employment Specialist who will help the individual through Job Development, Placement and Retention Services.
